“A guitar is a very personal extension of the person playing it. You have to be emotionally and spiritually connected to your instrument. I could’ve just stayed at home and built this guitar for myself. I do this because a lot of people ask if they can get what I use. Well, yes you can, and what you get is identical to what I use. We redid everything on this guitar. That’s why it took so long.”

In 1978 a skinny kid from L.A. armed with a homemade guitar and a disarming smile grabbed the rock world by the throat and kicked its ass hard. Really hard. Eddie Van Halen and his crazy, never-seen-before talents rewrote the rules and raised the bar — big time. Eddie’s monster technique and tone demanded a no-frills, no BS, high-performance, indestructible axe. But one didn’t exist so he made his own — the now legendary homemade guitar known as ‘Frankenstein.’ “At the time, no guitar did what I needed mine to do, so I built my own that did,” Eddie affirms.

Thirty-five years later, Eddie Van Halen’s still doing it — studying and improving everything about the instrument. It’s personal for him and that’s where the new Wolfgang comes from. It’s the culmination of his endless pursuit of outstanding tone, durability and consistency. Now available to the public after a year of brutal testing on tour, the EVH Wolfgang is built to his exact specs and has every single feature of the guitars he himself plays onstage and in the studio. It’s exactly what he uses.
“Everything that I’ve built, destroyed, stumbled onto, learned and experienced is in this guitar. Every aspect and component of this guitar has been examined and upgraded to the highest standards possible—stainless steel frets, double-potted custom-wound pickups, five-piece binding on the matching body and headstock, custom-made signature tuning machines and Floyd Rose® bridge, new low-friction pots, and the list keeps going. We left no stone unturned.

“I can go on and on talking about what we went through to build this guitar. The bottom line is, if you take the time to play one, I’m willing to bet you’ll go with a Wolfgang. You’ll feel what I feel. IT’S JUST BETTER.”

“Eddie’s accomplishments are enormous. Positively towering… there isn’t one aspect of the electric guitar he hasn’t changed, rearranged, or reinvented. He’s Hendrix and Les Paul combined. He revolutionized the way the guitar is played and revolutionized guitar technology.”
